ABSTRACT

Based on data collected by the American Association of Junior Colleges (AAJC), this directory provides information on 598 junior colleges in the United States and its territories, Canada, and other selected countries for 1953-54. Following introductory material on the scope of the directory, tables provide statewide summaries of the following data for all junior colleges, and for public and private junior colleges: number of colleges, AAJC membership, student enrollments, and numbers of full- and part-time faculty. Next, the directory lists the colleges alphabetically by state, providing the following information for each: location; administrative head; AAJC membership; state recognition or accrediting agency; type of control or affiliation; co-educational or single-sex status; date founded; enrollments for 1953-54 broken down by freshman, sophomore, or unclassified status, adult enrollments, and full- or part-time status; and full- and part-time faculty members. The following sections provide a list of individual AAJC members; an alphabetical listing of junior colleges; a directory of national and regional junior college organizations; and a directory of junior college honorary societies and social organizations. Finally, an analysis of junior college growth reviews changes in the number of colleges and enrollments, the size and location of colleges, faculty numbers, types of colleges and forms of control, and accreditation agencies. Junior College Directory, 1955

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF JUNIOR COLLEGES

Compiled by

C. C. COLVERT, Director of Research and

M. L. BAKER, Associate Director

The Directory contains information concerning junior colleges in the United States and its territories, Canada, and other countries. The list comprises both accredited and non-accredited institutions and may include the names of some schools which are doing relatively little junior college work. In general, institutions have not been included when they are not listed as junior colleges by state departments of education which recognize this classification.

Separately organized junior colleges, general colleges, or lower divisions maintained by four-year colleges or universities are included only if they are active members of the American Association of Junior Colleges. One college is listed with last year's data since information was not received from it this year.

The Directory is as complete as possible within the obvious limitations of space. For more detailed descriptions of the individual colleges listed it is suggested that the reader consult the 1952 edition of American Junior Colleges, edited by Jesse P. Bogue, and published by the American Council on Education.

Definition of Terms

Administrative Head. Each institution's designation of its administrative head has been accepted. The official title has been indicated following the name. It is assumed that this person is the one to whom correspondence should be addressed. It is not implied that in all cases the designated administrative head holds final administrative responsibility for the college.

Accreditation. The American Association of Junior Colleges does not act as an accrediting agency. Member institutions are prohibited by constitutional provisions from indicating, implying, or publicizing accreditation by this Association. Types of accreditation or equivalent recognition or approval are indicated by symbols as follows:

State Department of Education; the Board of Education in the District of Columbia; the Junior College Accrediting Commission in Mississippi; the Provincial Department of Education in Canada.

D—Indicates accreditation by the above

D[1]—Indicates approval to operate as a junior college

D[2]—Indicates recognition as a junior college

Association of State Colleges or equivalent, State University, State College, or equivalent institutions in states which do not have a state university.

Type. Three main types are distinguished: Coeducational, for men only, and for women only indicated by C., M., and W., respectively. One school, indicated by S., enrolls both men and women, but on a segregated basis. Negro junior colleges are indicated by "N" following the name of the institution.

Control. The primary basis for classification is twofold: institutions publicly controlled and institutions privately controlled. The first group is divided into state, local or municipal, union district, county, and joint county junior colleges; the second into those under denominational control or affiliation, non-denominational and nonprofit institutions, and proprietary institutions. Year Organized. Each institution was asked to report the year it was organized as a junior college. In some cases the date of origin of an institution which later developed into a junior college may have been given.

Enrollment. Enrollment data are given for the year June 1, 1953 to May 31, 1954 unless otherwise stated. A "special student" is defined as a student who is not classified as either a freshman or sophomore because he is carrying less than a full-time load but who can be considered to be working toward a degree, diploma, or certificate. An "adult student" is defined as one who is above the compulsory school age and who would not be classified as a freshman, sophomore or special student.

Faculty. The number of faculty is given for the same year as the student enrollment. The full-time faculty equivalent total is the sum of the full-time faculty and the full-time equivalent of the part-time faculty.

Membership. Membership in the American Association of Junior Colleges is indicated by an "M" or a "P" depending upon whether the membership is full or provisional. Active membership is open to any college which has received complete accreditation or equivalent recognition of any of the types indicated under "accreditation" above. Provisional membership is open to newly organized institutions and to others which have not yet received such recognition.

Analysis of Junior College Growth

C. C. COLVERT and M. L. BAKER

From 1900 to 1954 the college-age population has increased more than 34 per cent. Furthermore, estimates of future college-age population indicate that from 1954 to 1970 there will be a 71 per cent increase.[1] This, along with such facts as the educational level of the population being advanced tenfold from 1900 to 1950, would seem to indicate two things: (1) increased potential enrollment for those junior colleges now in operation, and (2) a need for more junior colleges to be established between now and 1970. Heretofore, as more and more persons have sought post-high school training, the junior colleges have assisted in accommodating them. With this in mind the future looks promising indeed for the junior college movement.

Number of Colleges and Enrollments

The turn of the century saw only eight institutions recognized as junior colleges with a total enrollment of approximately 100. The rapid development of the junior college movement has come about in this century with the major impetus since about 1920. By 1946–47 the number had grown to 663 with a total enrollment of 455,048. The data for the school year 1953–54 reported in the present Directory represent a total of 598 colleges with an enrollment of 622,864. Most of these colleges are located in the United States, but 14 colleges enrolling 3,903 students are located outside the continental limits of the United States. For the interested reader a history of the development of the junior college of the United States is presented in Chapter II by Phebe Ward in American Junior Colleges.[2]

Table IV shows the number of colleges and the total enrollments from 1900 to the present. The figures for 1900 were estimated for the 1949 Directory; those for 1915 were compiled by McDowell, and those for 1922 and 1927 by Koos.

Table V shows the number of public and private junior colleges from 1900 to the present. The number of public and the number of private junior colleges in the United States were approximately equal in 1948. In the present directory the ratio is about four public junior colleges for every three private.

Since that date the public junior colleges have expanded until in the present Directory the enrollment in public junior colleges is almost eight times that of private junior colleges.

Size and Location of Colleges

Table IX shows the distribution of size of enrollment. It will be noted that the range in enrollment of the junior colleges is very large and that the modal group is 100–199. However, it should be noticed that almost 21 per cent of the junior colleges have an enrollment of more than 1,000.

Table XI presents data for regional areas by states, number of colleges, and enrollment for periods of five years beginning in 1930 and extending to the present. The data for 1929–30 through 1949–50 were obtained from the respective Junior College Directories. Enrollment in the United States has increased steadily although the number of colleges has fluctuated somewhat. The per cent of increase in enrollment ranged from a low of 6.41 (1940–45) to a high of 123.96 (1945–50). The increase in enrollment from 1950 to the present is almost 11 per cent.

The reason for the decrease of enrollment from 1950 to 1954 in some regions was caused by many factors. For example, in Texas the 1950 Directory listed 58 junior colleges. The present Directory lists 45 colleges. The reason being business colleges were dropped because of a ruling by the Texas Education Agency (State Department of Education) that they were not junior colleges. Of course, this is only one factor. However, if all these factors were taken into consideration, then it might very well be said there was a steady increase in the enrollment in each of the regional areas.

Number of Faculty

Table I of the Directory shows a total of 12,473 full-time faculty members as compared to 12,056 for 1952–53 and 12,039 for 1951–52. There are 11,289 part-time faculty members as compared to 10,035 for 1952–53 and 9,204 for 1951–52.

Types of Colleges

Of the 598 colleges for which data were tabulated, the largest number were co-educational with 487 or almost 82 per cent in this category. These 487 colleges accounted for 97 per cent of the total enrollment. Publicly controlled co-educational colleges enrolled 552,392 and privately controlled co-educational colleges enrolled 52,066.

The information given on years included may be summarized as follows:

One-year junior colleges	8
Two-year junior colleges	560
Three-year junior colleges	3
Four-year junior colleges	27

It is evident that the two-year organization is the prevailing type. The four-year organization which reached a peak number of 41 in 1948–49, dropped to 28 in 1952–53 and there are 27 reported in this Directory.

Types of Control

In addition to the listing made in the Directory of the enrollments in public and private junior colleges, the following report by types of private control is made. Denominational groups whose total enrollment was less than a thousand are included under "others."

Membership in the American Association of Junior Colleges

As of the writing of this report, 446 colleges out of a total of 598 were active members of the Association. Three others reported provisional membership. California with a total of 73 colleges had 49 active members of the Association. Texas with 45 colleges had 40 active members. Fourteen states reported perfect membership records although they included only 42 colleges.

Accreditation

The majority of the junior colleges included in the present Directory are accredited by some accrediting agency. Junior colleges not recognized by their own state departments of education are not listed. Approximately 50 per cent of the junior colleges are accredited by the
